

Jacques Lacan - Seminar XXVII - On Sociological Conditions
By Jacques Lacan

I. Health, wage, and Spiritual Life

Actually we are complex cellular auto-poetic lives - in ontology - now phenomenology derides all the crises.

The old debate - will you be scientific or social scientific?

I believe the judge decides scientific - with of course no logic of how to follow science.

II. Lesra, Elijah and Paul

A woman meets a black prophet who works with Paul.

III. Balances

Paul tilts the balance to science, and only science.

His debate is strict and to principal - never heard before is this belief in science over even fact but as fact.
